DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 8-21 are allowed over prior art of record.

Reasons for Allowance

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The prior art of record neither anticipates nor renders obvious the claimed subject matter of the instant application as a whole either taken alone or in combination, in particular, prior art of record does not teach "wherein in the heating, the electrically conductive particles collect between the opposing terminals by melting and agglomeration of the electrically conductive particles, and the opposing terminals are electrically interconnected; and curing the resin component".

Re. claim 8, Kawaguchi et al. discloses a method of interconnecting terminals comprising: placing terminals(2a,2b) so as to oppose each other with an anisotropic electrically conductive resin composition including at least electrically conductive particles(4) and a resin component(3) which is not completely cured at the melting point of the electrically conductive particles disposed between the opposing terminals; heating the resin composition with the opposing terminals large enough to enable the particles to move laterally inside the space(Figure 2,Column 5,lines 46-68) but does not teach heating the resin composition to a temperature which is higher than the melting point of the electrically conductive particles and at which the resin component is not completed cured, wherein in the heating, the electrically conductive particles collect between the opposing terminals by melting and agglomeration of the electrically conductive particles, and the opposing terminals are electrically interconnected; and curing the resin component.

Therefore, prior art of record neither anticipates not render obvious the instant application claimed invention as a whole either taken alone or in combination.

Claims 9-10,15-19 are also allowed as being dependent on allowed claim 8.

Re. claim 11, Kawaguchi et al. discloses a method of mounting a semiconductor device comprising: placing electrode pads(not shown) of a semiconductor chip opposite circuit electrodes provided on a circuit substrate so as to correspond to the electrode pads with an anisotropic electrically conductive resin composition including at least electrically conductive particles and a resin component which is not completely cured at the melting point of the electrically conductive particles disposed between the opposing electrode pads and circuit electrodes(Figure 1)(Figure 2,Column 5,lines 46-68) but does not teach heating the resin composition to a temperature which is higher than the melting point of the electrically conductive particles and at which the resin component is not completed cured, wherein in the heating, the electrically conductive particles collect between the opposing electrode pads and circuit electrodes by melting and agglomeration of the electrically conductive particles, and the opposing electrode pads and circuit electrodes are electrically interconnected; and curing the resin component.

Art Unit: 2895

Therefore, prior art of record neither anticipates not render obvious the instant application claimed invention as a whole either taken alone or in combination.

Claims 12-14 are also allowed as being dependent on claim 11.

Re. claim 20. Kawaguchi et al. discloses a method of interconnecting terminals comprises: placing a first member having a first terminal opposite a second member having a second terminal so that each of the first terminal opposes one of the second terminal to define a pair of opposing terminal with an anisotropic electrically conductive resin composition including electrically conductive particles(4) and a resin component(3) which is not completely cured at the melting point of the electrically conductive particles completely filling a region between the first and second member which contains the pair of opposing terminal; heating the resin composition to enable the particles to move laterally inside the space but does not teaches having a plurality of first and opposing second terminals and heating the resin composition to a temperature which is higher than the melting point of the electrically conductive particles and at which the resin component is not completely cured with the two terminals in each pair of opposing terminals and wherein in the heating, a plurality of the electrically conductive particles in the composition move from outside the spaces between the opposing terminals and accumulate in the spaces together with electrically conductive particles already inside the spaces prior to the heating by melting and agglomeration of the electrically conductive particles to electrically interconnect the two opposing terminals in each of the opposing terminals and curing the resin component.

Therefore, prior art of record neither anticipates not render obvious the instant application claimed invention as a whole either taken alone or in combination.

Claim 21 is also allowed as being dependent on claim 20.

Conclusion

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
